- (a) * Date of arrest, abduction or disappearance (at least month and year): ?
- (b) * Place of arrest, abduction or where the disappearance occurred (be as precise as possible. Indicate street, city, province or any other relevant information):

Kim Kyu-heung was graduated from the Samu School established by Japanese in Shinuiju and worked at the Aprojkang Supoong Power Plant for several years, then came to Packryoung-do where he started to teach Gayul primary School (presently Bukpo primary school). He was abducted by the North Korean People's Army while he was teaching. Then in Packryoung-do there are four primary schools, and the North Korean People's army occupied them and didn't give salaries to teachers. Because Kim Kyu-heung said that teachers in poor economic condition should be paid to continue their teaching, he was taken to the prison as political offender in Packryoung Jinchon-ri.

and when they retreated, he was also taken and held for a while in Jangyeon Prison, North Korea. Then, when South Korean army advanced North, North Korean Peoples Army set fire to the prison and fled. They said most of the prisoners (about 100) in Jangyeon Prison was burned to death.

A special law pertaining to the Korean War abductions finally legislated in March 2010, and the National Committee on Investigating Abductions during the Korean War was established with the Prime Minister as chairman. This new law stipulates government to compile an updated list of abductees based on petitions submitted by surviving family members of the abductees.
